
As you may or may not know, this Saturday, Fight Code held an event in conjunction with TK2, featuring a one night, eight man tournament on the TK2 portion of the card. Fight Code only showed their own Fight Code portion of the card on their stream, so we had no opportunity to watch the TK2 portion of the card.

Yohan Lidon and Leroy Kaestner were scheduled for the tournament but it seems both of them pulled out. I'd assume Lidon pulled out due to his MPL fight next month in the Netherlands and he has a fight in France against Gregory Choplin a month after that. As for Kaestner, rumors are swirling that he's actually retired from kickboxing altogether. Nothing is one hundred percent certain though about his future though. Lidon was supposed to fight Ait Said and Kaestner was supposed to fight Ismael Uzuner, both in the quarter finals.

Chris van Venrooij went on to win the tournament. The tournament is a nice feather in his cap, as he's come up short against most of the higher up fighters he's faced. Every fight on the TK2 portion went to decision. Check out the full results below:

Superfight
Fabrice Aurieng def. German Talbot by decision.

Final
Chris van Venrooij def. Ait Said by decision.

Superfight
Wallid Haddad def. Niclas Larsen by decision.

Semi Final
Ait Said def. Enriko Gogokhia by decision.

Semi Final
Chris van Venrooij def. Yohan Beausejour by decision.

Superfight
Philippe Salmon def. Willy Borrel by decision.

Quarter Final
Enriko Gogokhia def. Ismael Uzuner by decision.

Quarter Final
Ait Said def. Yazid Boussaha by decision.

Quarter Final
Chris van Venrooij def. Farhat Ahmedjanov by decision.

Quarter Final
Johan Beausejour def. Mohammed Medhar by decision.