The biggest kickboxing event since the 2010 K-1 World Grand Prix is happening on Saturday. Headlined by a clash of elite heavyweights that pits Gokhan Saki against Badr Hari, the rest of the fight card is just as good, featuring 12 great fights.

The card is split into two portions, Part 1 and Part 2. Part 1 is the undercard, which will be on It's Showtime's live stream and the Fight Network in Canada. It will be aired in the US on HDNet on February 3. Part 2 is the main card featuring Badr Hari vs. Gokhan Saki and will be aired live on all three platforms; It's Showtime's live stream, Fight Network in Canada and HDNet in the US.

This is an overview of the full fight card for fans or casual viewers interested in tuning in but not quite sure who's fighting. Once again, it's a stacked card and any fan of combat sports should be tuning in on Saturday. It's during the late morning/afternoon so it won't get in the way of UFC on Fox. You'll have a whole day of combat sports. Full fight card below.

Part 1:

-70kg: Henri van Opstal vs. Hafid el Boustati

-70kg: Andy Ristie vs. Hinata Watanabe

-95kg: Sahak Parparyan vs. Mourad Bouzidi

Heavyweight: Ricardo van den Bos vs. Ben Edwards

-73kg: L'houcine "Aussie" Ouzgni vs. Yohan Lidon (It's Showtime 73kg World Title Fight)

Heavyweight: Melvin Manhoef vs. Tyrone Spong

Part 2:

Heavyweight: Michael Duut vs. Anderson "Braddock" Silva

-70kg: Harut Grigorian vs. Chris Ngimbi

Heavyweight: Errol Zimmerman vs. Rico Verhoeven

-70kg: Murat Direkci vs. Robin van Roosmalen

Heavyweight: Daniel Ghita vs. Hesdy Gerges (It's Showtime Heavyweight World Title Fight)

Heavyweight: Badr Hari vs. Gokhan Saki (Last kickboxing fight of Badr Hari)