Written by Chad Sanderson Wednesday, 13 February 2013 15:35 - Last Updated Wednesday, 13 February 2013 16:46

According to the folks over at MMAWeekly.com, MMA bad boy Paul Daley will be making his return to the kickboxing ring March 23 at GLORY 5 in London. We've been hearing rumors of Daley coming to GLORY for a while, but they haven't been confirmed until now.

Daley was initially scheduled to make his debut in the Bellator welterweight tournament early this year, but visa troubles prevented this from happening.

Paul Daley is well known for his time in the UFC and Strikeforce, amassing a collection of highlight reel knockout finishes and becoming one of the most controversial figures of mma in the process. With a 14-3 record in kickboxing and professional muay thai, Semtex comes into GLORY with a sizable amount of stand-up experience.

As of now, no opponent for Daley has been announced.